Mrs. Folger Complains of Her Husband's Methods at Divorce Proceedings.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 5.—"He knew I was very fond of his little daughter and when he wanted money he held her as a weapon over me," exclaimed Mrs. Fannie S. Folger in Judge Wood's court yesterday. Mrs. Folger was the widow of Dexter A. Folger of Cambridge. She was referring to her chauffeur-husband, Charles A. Folger, who was in court to show cause why he should not keep away from Mrs. Folger's handsome home in Long Beach.

"I went there to see my daughter," explained Folger.

Folger told Judge Wood he had obtained employment as an automobile salesman, and denied that he attempted to annoy Mrs. Folger.

"He came at 4 o'clock in the morning," declared Mrs. Folger, and she proceeded to tell the court that the automobile Mr. Folger is using belongs to her and that only two weeks ago she gave him $500 to pay his debts.

The pending divorce suit filed by Mrs. Folger, alleges cruelty and non-support on the part of her husband, who was formerly her chauffeur. As the widow of Dexter A. Folger of Boston she enjoys an estate of more than $130,000 and a prominent position in society.

Folger's little girl was adopted by her after she married, and she has the temporary custody under an order of the court. Yesterday Judge Woods made an order allowing Folger to see his child every Sunday afternoon, but he might not take her out of the county.

Folger was instructed to keep away from his wife at other times than Sundays when calling for the child.

The divorce complaint charged the chauffeur-husband with cruelty and habitual intoxication.

WILSON CALLS FOR IMPORTANT LEGISLATION

In Message Delivered to Both Branches of Congress Today---Wants Speedy
Action on Railway Measures

By Stewart Godwin

Internal News Staff Correspondent
Washington, Dec. 5.—President Wilson wants his original railway legislation program completed. He also wants a Corrupt Practices Act "with teeth" passed by congress before March 1.

The President made this plain today when he outlined his views to a joint session of congress. He did not touch upon preparedness other than to ask that congress be guided by the reports and recommendations of the secretaries of war and the navy, following out the policies laid down at the last session. Mr. Wilson asked that action on the big supply bills be guided by the annual reports of the heads of the executive departments, the members of his cabinet.

Following his custom Mr. Wilson addressed the joint session from the clerk's desk on the speaker's rostrum in the house chamber. The first three rows of seats were occupied by members of the senate, the balance of the seats and the space at the back of the chamber accommodating the members of the house.

Every available inch of space in the galleries were crowded, many having occupied their seats for hours before the formal opening of the house. Admission to the galleries was entirely by card, and thousands were turned away from the doors.

Every seat in the diplomatic gallery was filled. In his address however, President Wilson made no reference to the country's foreign relations and did not even by inference, touch upon the Mexican situation. He likewise refrained from any comment on the suggestion of an embargo on foodstuffs.

Touching the railroad situation, President Wilson asked speedy action on all but one of the recommendations made to congress in August last, and which have not yet been enacted into law. He declared that the congressional approval asked by him when he last addressed the congress to give authority to the Interstate Commerce Commission to grant an increase in freight rates if it is found necessary is not needed. If the eight hour basis of work and wages under which the railroads are operating necessitates additional revenue for the operation of the roads, Mr. Wilson declares, it is "indisputably clear" that the commission has the power to grant the increase in rates.

Early action by the senate on the bill passed by the house authorizing two additional members of the Interstate Commerce Commission, was solemnly urged by President Wilson. He appealed to congress to act favorably and quickly on the pending measure corresponding to the Canadian Industrial Disputes Act, designed to make unlawful strikes or lockouts before full public investigation has been made of all disputes between employers and employees, and on the bill designed to give the President power, in times of "military necessity" to take over the railroads of the country, their rolling stock, and to draft into the military service for operation of the roads such employees and officials as are necessary.

In addition to railroad legislation, President Wilson appealed for action by the senate on the following gen-

New York, Dec. 5.—George Bodt, proprietor of the Waldorf-Astoria, one of the famous hotel men of the country died today, heart disease being the cause of his death. He was 63 years of age. He was one of the best known hotel men in the world. He came to the United States a penniless boy and started his career in a Broadway restaurant.

STANDARD OIL HEAD DIES AT TARRYTOWN

John D. Archbold Began Life
as Office Boy and His Advance Was Rapid.

Tarrytown, N. Y., Dec. 5.—John D. Archbold, the president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, died at his home this morning at 4 o'clock. Death followed an operation for appendicitis on Nov. 24, and from which he never fully rallied. He was born in Leesburg, Ohio, July 26, 1853.

His father was a Methodist preacher, who died leaving his family quite poor, and at the age of twelve young Archbold began his business career by lighting fires in the country schools and doing other odd jobs around the town of Leesburg.

Every penny he could scrape together he gave his mother to help support the household, meanwhile studying Latin at night with the village schoolmaster.

When oil was discovered in Pennsylvania he was sixteen years old. He joined the first rush of adventurers to the oil fields and secured a position as office boy with a small oil firm in Titusville.

His faculty for quickly grasping the financial details of the business gained him rapid promotion, and at the age of nineteen William H. Abbott, his employer, took him into the firm as a partner.

Young Archbold upon receiving this recognition of his ability, jumped into the harness of the business with renewed vigor and began to specialize on problems of transportation. A year later the firm became largely interested in a refinery in Titusville, and because of the rapid extension of the business it was decided to open an office in New York.

Although only twenty, Mr. Archbold was selected for this important post and went to the metropolis and secured offices. He not only directed the business of his own concern in New York, but took on the additional responsibilities of handling oil for others, and in a short time he had built up an extensive business.

Mr. Archbold's ready wit and unflinching humor enabled him to more than hold his own with the older men in the oil business, and he soon became recognized as an important factor in the industry.

At this time John D. Rockefeller was already a notable leader in the petroleum industry, and upon his arrival from the Middle West, he was confronted by young Archbold, who proceeded to convince him that crude oil which was then selling at a remarkably low figure, should instead be marketed at $4 a barrel.

Mr. Rockefeller was so impressed with the young man's enthusiasm that he promptly made him an offer of employment which Archbold accepted. In 1875 he was made a director in the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and later its vice president, in which capacity he continued until his election to the presidency in 1911. He was prominent in various Government investigations of the oil industry.

He was interested in many things outside the oil industry, particularly Syracuse University, of which he was president of the Board of Trustees. He was a director of St. Christopher's Home and Orphanage in New York. He was also active in the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the American Museum of Natural History.

He is survived by his wife, two daughters and one son, John P. Archbold.

WILSON CALL FOR IMPORTANT LEGISLATION

ent legislation, which received the approval of the house at the last session:

1—The Webb bill removing from the restrictions of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law combinations of merchants or interests engaged solely in export trade.

2—The Corrupt Practices Act.

3—The Porto Rican Citizenship bill, organizing the island possessions on the basis of a territory, and extending suffrage to the inhabitants.

In stating to congress that its approval is unnecessary, in respect to the increase of freight rates to be granted to the railroads by the Interstate Commerce Commission in investigation shows that operating costs have been increased by passage of the eight-hour law, the President said, "A recommendation by the congress with regard to such a matter might seem to draw into question the scope of the commission's authority or its inclination to do justice when there is no reason to doubt either."

The greatest necessity exists for action by the senate on the bill, providing for an increase in the membership of the Interstate Commerce Commission from seven to nine, Mr. Wilson pointed out, particularly on account of the new burdens thrown on the commission by the questions that have arisen as a result of the Adamson eight-hour law going into effect.

Dwelling on its renewed recommendations for the enactment of a law prohibiting lockouts or strikes before all possible effort at arbitration, conciliation and public investigation have failed, the President said:

"The country cannot and should not consent to remain any longer exposed to profound industrial disturbances for lack of additional means of arbitration and conciliation which the congress can easily and quickly supply. And all who agree," he continued, "that there must be no doubt as to the power of the executive to make immediate and uninterrupted use of the railroads for the concentration of the military forces of the nation wherever they are needed and whenever they are needed."

Discussing his recommendations for a law similar to the Canadian Industrial Disputes act, the President declared that he would hesitate to recommend that any man in any occupation be obliged by law to continue in an employment which he desired to leave. That, he said, would be "to adopt a new principle in our jurisprudence which, I take it for granted, we are not prepared to introduce."

The legislation urged, he pointed out, is not based on that principle. "It is based upon the very different principle," the President went on, "that the concerted action of powerful bodies of men shall not be permitted to stop the industrial progress of the nation, at any rate before the nation shall have had an opportunity to acquaint itself with the merits of the case, time to form an opinion upon an impartial statement of the merits and opportunity to consider all practical means of conciliation and arbitration. I can see nothing in that proposition but the justifiable safeguarding by society of the necessary processes of its very life. There is nothing arbitrary or unjust in it, unless it be arbitrarily or unjustly done. It can and should be done with a full and scrupulous regard for the interests and liberties of all concerned, as well as for the permanent interests of society itself."

Immediate passage of the Corrupt Practices Act "would greatly relieve the public mind," the President asserted. He warned against delay in consideration of the bill, which is designed to regulate the expenditures of money in elections, arguing that it be dealt with now "while the circumstances and the dangers to the public morals of the present method of obtaining and spending campaign money stand clear under recent observation, and the methods of expenditure can be frankly studied in the light of present experience."

Failure by the present congress to pass this bill, the President pointed out, would postpone action until another election was at hand "and some special object connected with it might be thought to be in the minds of those who urged it. Action can be taken now," he added, "with facts for guidance and without suspicion for partisan purpose."

No lengthy argument is required, Mr. Wilson declared, in support of the recommendation that Americans engaged in the export trade be given a freer hand.

"That enterprise," he said "will immediately assume a magnitude unprecedented in our experience. We should clear away all legal obstacles and create a basis of undoubted law for it which will give freedom without permitted unregulated license."

"This thing must be done now," he declared with emphasis, "because the opportunity is here and may escape us if we hesitate or delay."

"Touching the necessity for similar approval of the bill passed by the house at the last session giving full citizenship and the right of suffrage to the people of Porto Rico, President Wilson said:

"We have created expectations of extended privileges which we have not satisfied. There is uneasiness among the people of the island, and even a suspicious doubt with regard to our intentions concerning them which the adoption of the pending measure would happily remove. We ought to do it once."

Mr. Wilson indicated clearly that unless some unusual internal or international crisis should require it, he would not again address congress at the present session.

"I hope that you will permit me to say with what genuine pleasure and satisfaction I have co-operated with you in the many measures of constructive policy with which you have enriched the legislative annals of the country," the President said in conclusion. "It has been a privilege to labor in such company. I take the liberty of congratulating you upon the completion of a record of rare serviceableness and distinction."

President Wilson's address was as follows:

Gentlemen of the Congress: In fulfilling at this time the duty laid upon me by the Constitution of communicating to you from time to time information of the state of the Union and recommending to your consideration such legislative measures as may be judged necessary and expedient I shall continue the practice which I hope has been acceptable to you, of leaving to the reports of the several heads of the executive departments the elaboration of the detailed needs of the public service and confine myself to those matters of more general public policy with which it seems necessary and feasible to deal at the present session of the congress.

I reiterate the limitations of the time under which you will necessarily act at this session and shall make my suggestions as few as possible; but there were some things left undone at the last session which there will now be time to complete and which it seems necessary in the interest of the public to do at once.

In the first place it seems to me imperatively necessary that the earliest possible consideration and action should be accorded the remaining measures of the programme of settlement and regulation which I had occasion to recommend to you at the close of your last session in view of the public dangers disclosed by the unaccommodated difficulties which then existed and which still unhappily continue to exist, between the railroads of the country and their locomotive engineers, conductors and trainmen.

I then recommended: First, immediate provision for the enlargement and administrative reorganization of the Interstate Commerce Commission along the lines embodied in the bill recently passed by the house of representatives and now awaiting action by the senate; in order that the commission may be enabled to deal with the many great and various duties now devolving upon it with a promptness and thoroughness which are, with its present constitution and means of action, practically impossible.

Second, the establishment of an eight-hour day as the legal basis alike of work and wages in the employment of all railway employees who are actually engaged in the work of operating trains in interstate transportation.

Third, the authorization of the appointment by the President of a small body of men to observe the actual results in experience of the adoption of the eight-hour day in railroad transportation alike for the men and for the railroads.

Fourth, explicit approval by the congress of the consideration by the Interstate Commerce Commission of an increase of freight rates to meet such additional expenditures by the railroads as may have been rendered necessary by the adoption of the eight-hour day and which have not been offset by readjustments and economies, should the facts disclosed justify the increase.

Fifth, an amendment of the existing federal statute which provides for the mediation, conciliation and arbitration of such controversies as the present by adding to the provision that, in case the methods of the accommodation now provided for should fail, a full public investigation of the merits of every such dispute shall be instituted and completed before a strike or lock-out may lawfully be attempted.

And, sixth, the lodgment in the hands of the executive of the power, in case of military necessity to take control of such portions and such rolling stock of the railways of the country as may be required for military use and to operate them for military purposes, with authority to draft into the military service of the United States such train crews and administrative officials as the circumstances require for their safe and efficient use.

The second and third of these recommendations the congress immediately acted on; it established the eight-hour day as the legal basis of work and wages in train service and it authorized the appointment of a commission to observe the report upon the practical results, deeming these the measures most immediately needed; but it postponed action upon other suggestions until an opportunity should be offered for a more deliberate consideration of them. The fourth recommendation I do not deem it necessary to review. The power of the Interstate Commerce Commission to grant an increase of rates on the ground referred to is indisputably clear and a recommendation by the congress with regard to such a matter might seem to draw in question the scope of the commission's authority or its inclination to do justice when there is no reason to doubt either.

The other suggestions—the increase in the Interstate Commerce Commission's membership and its facilities for performing its manifold duties, the provision for full public investigation and assessment of industrial disputes, and the grant to the executive of the power to control and operate the railways when necessary in time of war or other like public necessity—now very earnestly renew.

The necessity for such legislation is manifest and pressing. Those who have entrusted us with the responsibility and duty of serving and safeguarding them in such matters would find it hard, I believe to excuse a failure to act upon these grave matters or an unnecessary postponement of action upon them.

Not only does the Interstate Commerce Commission now find it practically impossible, with its present membership and organization, to perform its great functions promptly and thoroughly but it is not unlikely that it may presently be found advisable to add to its duties still others equally heavy and exacting. It must first be perfected by an administrative instrument.

The country cannot and should not consent to remain any longer exposed to profound industrial disturbances for lack of additional means of arbitration and conciliation which the congress can easily and promptly supply. And all will agree that there must be no doubt as to the power of the executive to make immediate and uninterrupted use of the railroads for the concentration of the military forces of the nation wherever they are needed and whenever they are needed.

This is a programme of regulation, prevention and administrative efficiency which argues its own case in the mere statement of it. With regard to one of its items, the increase in the efficiency of the Interstate Commerce Commission, the house of representatives has already acted; its action needs only the concurrence of the senate.

I would hesitate to recommend, and I do not say the congress would hesitate to act upon the suggestion should I make it, that any man in any occupation should be obliged by law to continue in an employment which he desires to leave. To pass a law which forbade or prevented the individual workman to leave his work before receiving the approval of society in doing so would be to adopt a new principle into our jurisprudence which I take it for granted we are not prepared to introduce. But the proposal that the operation of the railways of the country shall not be stopped or interrupted by the concerted action of organized bodies of men until a public investigation shall have been instituted which shall make the whole question at issue plain for the judgment of the opinion of the nation is not to propose any such principle. It is based upon the very different principle that the concerted action of the powerful bodies of men shall not be permitted to stop the industrial processes of the nation, at any rate before the nation shall have had an opportunity to acquaint itself with the merits of the case as between employee and employer, time to form its opinion upon an impartial statement of the merits, and opportunity to consider all practical means of conciliation or arbitration. I can see nothing in that proposition but the justifiable safeguarding by society of the necessary processes of its very life. There is nothing arbitrary or unjust in it unless it be arbitrarily and unjustly done. It can and should be done with a full and scrupulous regard for the liberties and interests of all concerned as well as for the permanent interests of society itself.

Three matters of capital importance await the action of the senate which have already been acted upon by the house of representatives; the bill which seeks to extend greater freedom of combination to those engaged in promoting the foreign commerce of the country than is now thought by some to be legal under the terms of the laws against monopoly; the bill amending the present organic law of Porto Rico; and the bill proposing a more thorough and systematic regulation of the expenditure of money in elections, commonly called the Corrupt Practices Act. I need not labor my advice that these measures be enacted into law. Their urgency lies in the manifest circumstances which render their adoption at this time not only opportune but necessary. Even delay would seriously jeopard the interests of the country and of the government.

Immediate passage of the bill to regulate the expenditure of money in elections may seem to be less necessary than the immediate enactment of the other measures to which I refer; because at least two years will elapse before another election in which federal offices are to be filled; but it would greatly relieve the public mind if this important matter were dealt with while the circumstances and the dangers to the public morals of the present method of obtaining and spending campaign funds stand clear under recent observation and the methods of expenditure can be frankly studied in the light of present experience; and a delay would have the further very serious disadvantage of postponing action until another election was at hand and some special object connected with it might be thought to be in the mind of those who urged it. Action can be taken now with facts for guidance and without suspicion of partisan purpose.

I shall not argue at length the desirability of giving a freer hand in the matter of combined and concerted effort to those who shall undertake the essential enterprise of building up our export trade. That enterprise will presently, will immediately assume, has indeed already assumed, a magnitude unprecedented in our experience. We have not the necessary instrumentalities for its prosecution; it is deemed to be doubtful whether they could be created upon an adequate scale under our present laws. We should clear away all legal obstacles and create a basis of undoubted law for it which will give freedom without permitting unregulated license. The thing must be done now, because the opportunity is here and may escape us if we hesitate or delay.

The argument for the proposed amendments of the organic law of Porto Rico is brief and conclusive. The present laws governing the island and regulating the rights and privileges of its people are not just. We have created expectations of extended privilege which we have not satisfied. There is uneasiness among the people of the island and even a suspicious doubt with regard to our intentions concerning them which the adoption of the pending measure would happily remove. We do not doubt what we wish to do in any essential particular. We ought to do it at once.

There are other matters already advanced to the stage of conference between the two houses of which it is not necessary that I should speak. Some practicable basis of agreement concerning them will not doubt be found and action taken upon them.

Inasmuch as this is, gentlemen, probably the last occasion I shall have to address the Sixty-fourth Congress, I hope that you will permit me to say with what genuine pleasure and satisfaction I have co-operated with you in the many measures of constructive policy with which you have enriched the legislative annals of the country. It has been a privilege to labor in such company. I take the liberty of congratulating you upon the completion of a record of rare serviceableness and distinction.

ELECTRIC ILLUMINATION FOR COMMUNITY TREE

Committee Organized to Perfect Plans For the Community Christmas Celebration to be Held on Market Square Christmas

A community Christmas tree will be held in this city on Christmas eve, the tree to be erected and the exercises to be held on Market Square. This will in a measure take the place of the New Year's celebration as New Year's eve this year falls on Sunday which would prevent any such celebration as has been held in the past two years.

A meeting of a committee who are arranging for the Christmas Tree was held in the office of the General Secretary of the Organized Charities, Mrs. C. A. Hull, on Monday afternoon and the preliminary plans were started. Mayor Samuel T. Ladd will be the chairman of the committee, with Mrs. W. D. Walker secretary and Mr. H. H. Smith, treasurer.

It was voted to erect the tree on Market Square on the Pleasant street side of the fountain. The tree which has been donated by Miss Webster will be selected by Messrs. F. A. Belden and Fred A. Gray who are the committee on securing and lighting the tree. Mr. Belden of the Rockingham Light and Power company has outlined plans for the decoration of the tree which will be sufficiently large to look well. Mr. W. A. Hodgdon of the Board of Public Works will have charge of the erection of the tree and the building of a suitable platform.

It was voted to have singing of the Christmas Carols by the children and all those who wish to join in, and Mrs.

Henry L. Wyman, Miss Eleanor Gooding, Miss Susan Northwick and Sgt. James N. Pringle were chosen committee on music and it is expected that Mr. Ernest Billbruek will be director of the singing.

The committee hopes to secure a band for a band concert following the singing of the carols and Mayor Ladd was asked to extend an invitation to the officers and men of the navy yard and the officers and men of the Port to attend.

A finance committee to secure the necessary funds to cover the expenses, which will not be large, was appointed consisting of Mr. F. M. Sise, R. D. McDonough and H. H. Smith. It was agreed that all donations not used for the necessary expenses will be devoted to charity, and a school childrens shoe fund was considered.

This will be the first venture in Portsmouth for a community Christmas tree and there is no doubt that it will be a success. Other cities have them and the idea is extending rapidly over the country, some extending the celebration over several days. In selecting Sunday at five o'clock as the time for the celebration, the committee figured on having the exercises over shortly after six o'clock so as not to interfere with the regular Sunday services.

Another meeting of the committee will be held next week when the final plans will be perfected.

new delights. Matinees are given daily. Hebrew Infant Benefit at the Hippodrome.

Next Sunday, Dec. 10th, the Hippodrome has been engaged for the annual benefit for the Home for Hebrew Infants. The program for this occasion which is prepared by the Young Folks League of that institution will include many Broadway stars in addition to the feature of "The Big Show." Anna Paylowa was among the first to volunteer her services.

Charles Dillingham has arranged for the annual appearance at the Hippodrome of John McCormack. This season the popular tenor will appear at the big playhouse on Sunday evening, January 7th.

The felt lined boots ordered for the Hippodrome elephants a short time ago to enable them to do their act over the frozen ice pond of the big playhouse without getting chilblains or cold feet will be delivered by Gus Anderson, the official bootmaker, this week. The whole family, Jennie, Roxie, Lena and Julie has been given a winter outfit of footwear.

Hippodrome Skaters Time Extended. Charles Dillingham announced yesterday that he has renewed his contracts with all the favorite European skaters at the Hippodrome forty-six in number. The contracts with these expert skaters, including Ellen Dallerup, Katie Schmidt and Hilda Ruecker, were originally for ten weeks, but on account of the great success of "The Merry Doll" Mr. Dillingham concluded to retain this feature throughout the season.

DR. EFFIE JONES A HUSTLER FOR EQUAL SUFFRAGE

DESERTS WOMEN'S MEETING TO ADDRESS MEN AND THEN RE-TURNS TO HER FORMER ENGAGEMENT.

If Dr. Effie McCollum Jones doesn't win converts to equal suffrage it will not be for lack of enterprise or willingness to work. In her visit to this city on Monday she showed that she had the necessary foresight to take advantage of an opportunity and during her talk before the Portsmouth branch of the Equal Suffrage League she learned of the meeting of the John Langdon Club at the North Church parish house. She took some time from her talk and hurried to the latter meeting where for fifteen minutes she spoke to the members of the John Langdon Club in a manner which no doubt shed to many a new light on one of the great questions which is fast becoming one of the most important in American politics.

The meeting of the John Langdon Club was being addressed by State Superintendent of Public Instruction Henry C. Morrison of Concord, who took as his subject, "The Future Citizens of New Hampshire." Mr. Morrison, in his talk, urged that New Hampshire boys and girls should secure their education within their own state as the schools and colleges within our boundaries today are as well fitted to provide the best in the educational lines as any other New England state.

It was at the close of Mr. Morrison's address that Dr. Jones made her entrance and on the invitation of the chairman of the meeting delivered a short talk on the justice of equal suffrage. She is firmly convinced that equal suffrage will come in time and she urged that Portsmouth be not the last to help in bringing the Granite State into the column that is recognizing that woman have equal right with men in the matter of government. She spoke for about fifteen minutes and was warmly applauded at her conclusion.

Following the addresses a luncheon of salads, rolls, ice cream and cake, and coffee was served. The meeting was attended by more than sixty members and guests, many of the faculty of the public schools being present to hear Mr. Morrison.

INJUNCTION AGAINST A MAN- CHESTER FIRM.

Judge Edgar Aldrich of the United States Court for the District of New Hampshire today handed down a decision granting an injunction to Jacob Johannes Haslinghuis against the P. Harrington Sons Company of Manchester.

Haslinghuis is a member of the John DeKuyper Company of Holland and the suit was brought alleging an infringement of the "Genuine Holland Gueven" gin label.

In granting the injunction Judge Aldrich says that the similarity of the labels and the bottle would tend to mislead the casual buyer and that ordinary damages for the plaintiff are warranted.

In substance he recommends a settlement between the parties and closes by saying that the plaintiffs may be given a hearing before him on the matter of damages if such is found to be necessary, the inquiry to be limited to the proven sale of the liquor.

For any itching skin trouble, piles, eczema, salt rheum, hives, itch, scald head, herpes, scabies, Dorr's Ointment is highly recommended, 50c a box at all stores.

Three Courts of Foresters of America Had Large Number on Their First Evening's Session in Freeman's Hall

The patrons of the Forester's Fair, which opened in Freeman's hall on Monday evening, for three days, refused to be dismayed at the disagreeable weather and the officers and committees in charge of the undertaking were heartily pleased at the attendance which was a forerunner of the certain success of the fair. From the time the fair was officially opened by Mayor Ladd, until midnight, when the doors were closed for the night, there was constant activity and the booths and wheels were working steadily. The fair is being held jointly by the three courts of the Foresters of America, and include Constitution Circle, No. 294; Court Tripoli F. of A., and Court Rockingham, F. of A.

Joseph Sacco, treasurer, Frank Litz, Philip Gerald, James Rinaldini, Angelo Diffradio of Court Tripoli F. of A.

Baby Show Today's Feature.

As a novel and interesting feature of the fair a baby show will be held this afternoon from 2.00 until 4.00 o'clock and the entries, already point to the success of the idea. Babies up to two years of age are eligible and valuable prizes are to be awarded to the winners of the novel contest which will include the youngest baby, the prettiest, and the heaviest. The babies will be judged by Hon. Samuel T. Ladd, Miss Peirce, the district nurse, and Richard D. McDonough.

MACKENSEN GAINS IN CAMPAIGN TO REACH BUCHAREST

London, Dec. 4.—The only new dispatch today from the Ruman field shows that von Mackensen has made a slight gain, the village of Gradistea, south of Bucharest, having been occupied by Teutonic troops. Obsolete fighting is in progress between Alexander and the Ruman capital, Petrograd reports. Bucharest and the armies defending it continue under serious threat not only from the forces on the southwest but also from those along the line of the Argechu, stretching northwestward to Pitest, and from General von Falkenhayn's armies pressing southward from the mountain passes, on the line turning abruptly at Pitest and extending northeastward, north of the Ruman capital. The force of the converging attack thus being pressed from three sides of Bucharest does not appear to have diminished. But the resisting powers of the Rumania, reinforced by Russian troops, seem to have strengthened somewhat. The Serbians have renewed their successful advance in Macedonia, capturing a height north of Grualista, and driving the Bulgarians in the direction of Stravina, four miles to the northeast, according to the French War Office statement today. Desperate battles have been in progress for some days in this region, which lies beyond the Cerna river east of Monastir. Berlin yesterday declared that the hill positions near Grunste were still firmly in the hands of the Germano-Bulgarian forces. King George today at an interview with Premier Asquith consented to a reconstruction of the Cabinet. Parliament was adjourned to Thursday to enable the Prime Minister to arrange who and how many are to compose it. The downfall of the Coalition Ministry is the result of great dissatisfaction among the British every where at what can only be described as a true English temperamental sloth. The late Cabinet has been described as "the twenty-three who are always late." The description is accurate. Every great thing accomplished by the Government since the war began has only eventuated after many months of being told that so and so had to be done if the war was to be won. A good example is the establishing only now of a "Food Dictator" which the far-seeing have insisted on for a whole year past and always been met with stubborn resistance from the Cabinet. But with the universal recognition by the Allies and the Central Powers, that the final clash is to occur in 1917, that every last man and last strength must come into effect, temporizing has gone by the board in the mood of the nations. The utmost must be done and the result ascertained. Today's London despatches are united on the idea that the recent Cabinet was too large and not sufficiently united for war purposes.

posers to render true efficiency possible. When it comes to selecting the ministers the difficulties begin as to who must be selected. The probabilities point to Lloyd George as Premier, in which case Mr. Asquith will become Lord Chancellor. He may, however, remain and direct things other than the war. Mr. Asquith's determination to carry on the war is not in question but his old affiliations with right shibboleths have marked him as one who is no longer able to put into the ministry the impetus necessary in every department, the impetus which is now the overwhelming demand of a people unwilling to pay an unnecessary price in dead for winning the war.

NEIL O'BRIEN'S MINSTRELS

"Now that prohibition has overwhelmed nearly all of the Southern states," says Neil O'Brien the minstrel comedian, "many and various are the ways that citizens of that part of the country manage to get their drinks. On my last trip down South I had occasion to go into a barber shop in the afternoon and soon after I was ensconced in the chair and lathered, it struck me that the tonorial artist was running a "blind tiger" in addition to plying his trade. A couple of gentlemen of color came in and immediately proceeded to a back room. Presently one of them stuck his head out of the door and inquired:

"Mr. Johnson where is dem goods?"

"Mr. Johnson replied in a mysterious tone: 'Right dere in de refrigerator, yo' know where, just open de lid.'"

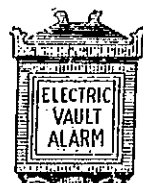

"Soon after I heard a noise like the drawing of corks. Presently the same dusky individual's head emerged from the door again and he said:

"We found de goods but where am de glasses?"

"The barber, evidently afraid that I might be an officer and in a spirit of caution replied reprovingly: 'Law sakes, man, ain't you learn-ed to read without glasses yet?'"

Neil O'Brien and his great American minstrels will be the attraction at the Portsmouth Theatre, Thursday of this week for one night only.

Down With the Extortioners.

News from various cities concerning the boycott on cold storage eggs and Thanksgiving turkeys is full of interest. It shows that the organized stand against the exactions of grasping dealers in foodstuffs is "cutting ice," to use a slang expression, and opens the eyes of the people to the power they have in their own hands. As a result of the stand taken by thousands of consumers the price of storage eggs has already dropped, while many markets carried heavy stocks of turkeys after the annual feast was over, in spite of the fact that prices were lowered in the last hours for Thanksgiving selling in the hope of closing out the supply, which appeared to be as abundant as ever.

These facts, with others that are constantly coming to light, indicate very plainly that the exorbitant prices of many foodstuffs are due to manipulation, as this newspaper has more than once hinted, and not to shortage, as claimed by the dealers. The claim has been put forth that the foreign war and short crops have made unavoidable the prices asked for many and most staple articles of food, but there have been numerous instances of late to prove that such is not the case, and that the trouble is due to combination and manipulation for the purpose of wringing undue profits from consumers.

Just now, owing to the boycott, the talk is chiefly about eggs and turkeys, but the squeezing operation is by no means confined to those two articles. A New York paper tells of retail coffee dealers to whom the wholesalers dictated the retail price, the penalty for failure to comply being a refusal to fill further orders. The wholesalers when interviewed denied the charge, but it will not take the public long to decide which story to believe.

Another interesting story comes from the cold storage world. In some, if not all of the states, there are laws providing that foodstuffs can be held in storage only for a certain length of time. These laws were passed as a health measure, and recent attempts to rob the people have brought to light the fact that the law is being evaded by moving cold storage products from one state to another, thus enabling the dealers to hold them as long as they please and to absolutely control the price.

It is high time for the people to rise in their might against this sort of thing. They are willing to make due allowance for war conditions and any actual shortage in supplies, but they are not willing to be robbed. The boycotters and officials of the law combined should be able to make an impression on those who have combined to fleece the public, and if they will stand together and stand firmly they will.

An accident on the New Haven railroad last week, in which two persons were killed and a number injured, attracts much notice, owing to the bad record of the road in recent years. But the road has made great improvement in the direction of safety under its present management, and there is every reason to believe that the improvement is to continue. In the meantime the management cannot complain if it has to suffer to a certain extent the unhappy experiences of the ex-convict.

Ten of the fourteen Chicago persons who are demonstrating the possibilities of a scientific diet lost weight on Thanksgiving day in spite of some extras in their bill of fare. They had enough to eat, but without doubt were thinking of how other people were fasting, and the loss of weight should be accepted as evidence of the power of mind over matter.

Billy Sunday does not neglect the financial end of his work. He reminds his great audiences frequently that it costs money to save souls and exhorts them not to "dead beat" their way in religion while contributing freely toward the support of other causes. And it will have to be admitted that this is as sound as some of the other points he makes.

The boycott has jarred the storage egg business to some extent, but the "strictly fresh" will continue to command top prices until the hens return from their vacation, as they are beginning to do, though not with such a rush as could be desired.

An agricultural college professor who has charge of the poultry department says his hens are laying from 2,000 to 2,500 eggs a week. But, unfortunately for the guidance of other hen men, he fails to state how many hens he has.

Not foot and mouth disease, but "stomatitis," is what ails the cattle out west, according to the latest reports. It sounds very much like an ailment from which infants suffer frequently, if we may judge by the talk of fond mothers and nurses.

A number of persons went to and from the Yale-Harvard football game in flying machines. But football will never be played in the air. It takes hard frozen ground or mud to bring out the full possibilities of the game.

O'DOWD WINNER OVER STEARNS BY FOURTEEN VOTES

Final Ward Is Counted at Office of Secretary of State.

Concord, Dec. 5.—John T. O'Dowd came through the recount of the Hillsborough county sheriff vote with 14 to spare over Sheriff George L. Stearns, when the last Nashua ward was inspected late yesterday afternoon by Deputy Secretary of State Robert D. Stearns. Stearns made a gain of 15 over the returns of the election officials, which gave O'Dowd a plurality of 29.

It is possible that the matter may find its way to the superior court for final settlement. The Stearns supporters claimed he would have the better of it, while the O'Dowd supporters held that the policeman would fare better than the inspection shows. Just what will be done will not be determined until the Stearns counsel go over their notes, which are voluminous and have to do with approximately 50 ballots. Some of these were counted for one or the other of the candidates and some were thrown out.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

A National Shame
(From the Christian Register)
Empty and peace tend to dull the edge of duty, and to produce an indifference more cruel, in its results, than the cruelties of war. Over ten millions were waged in our last election on the result of our late election, eagerly watched with no incentive but pride and the hope of ill-gotten gain, and they await disposition how hard it is to raise anything like such a sum for those who are agonizing and dying in want of it! Prosperity deadens sympathy, and avarice burns on the soul. The public apathy in America to the want in Europe is becoming a national shame. This is to be said in full view of all that America has given.

Whither Bryan is Headed
(From the Oakland Tribune)
It requires no consulting of the almanac to see where Colonel Bryan will fetch up four years hence. He is the logical outcome of the prohibition party. He has practically read himself out of the Democratic party already. His incoherence in the campaign indicated his slight party hold, and its triumph is not his victory. It is curious by the by, that he figured large only in party adversity. As soon as his party met with success he began to recede in prominence and now he has proclaimed his intent to head another political movement.

Funny—if It Were Not Tragic
(From the Detroit Free Press)

CURRENT OPINION

Personality in the Classroom the Great Factor in Education.

Personality is the most vital factor in education. With the excellent courses of study outlined by the New York state board of regents we should have ten times greater results in teaching than are being attained. The wonderful modern school buildings, with their complete equipment, the painstaking oversight of supervisors and the standardization of studies count for little unless the teacher himself radiates the virile force of compelling personality in the classroom.

Nothing is the matter with the boy if you meet him halfway. Of course he isn't like his father. Times have changed, and boys change with them. If he is perhaps more difficult to control, to interest and to enthuse, certainly as educators we are or should be all the better prepared for the task. The plastic mind of youth is keenly and almost instantly susceptible to the influence of kindly personality, and if educators would aim first to make a friend and then a student our task would be far less difficult.

Education needs no apologist. If educators do the fault is theirs. Instruction is not and never has been an exact science, yet we have progressed far along the road to knowledge.—By Thomas F. Clark, Educator.

The situation in northern Mexico as it is affected by the American attitude and policies has its tragic and shameful and its ludicrous sides.

The American Government has recognized Venustiano Carranza as the de facto Government in Mexico. It also has put an embargo on arms, Villa, Zapata, Felix Diaz et al. constantly smuggle arms and ammunition and there is reason to believe they have no trouble in getting all they can pay for. Carranza, because he is a regularly recognized Government, is unable to do this. Consequently he can get no war equipment with which to fight his enemies and our enemies.

The United States is keeping an army of occupation in northern Mexico for the purpose of "getting Villa." The Carranzistas at so have troops in the same region and their official business is likewise to get Villa. But the Carranzista army leaders are so distrustful of the American soldiers and are so busily occupied in watching them that they have neither time nor strength to go after Villa, who is taking advantage of the situation and is doing about as he pleases. We find in the field armies of two countries which might make life a nightmare for the man if they really set to work at the job, but nobody is doing anything.

The opera bouffe stunts pulled off in Latin American countries used to be great jokes in the United States, but can any one remember one more thoroughly silly than this to which our Government is a party?

PORTRAIT OF JOHN LANGDON IS FINISHED

The oil portrait of Hon. John Langdon of Portsmouth, which the senate last March authorized to be painted has been delivered to Senator Gallinger and will soon be given a place of honor on the walls of the main corridor of the capital at Washington.

The painting is the work of Miss H. E. Burdette and was taken from an old print of Langdon selected by Senator Gallinger from several submitted. The portrait is a fine piece of work and pending its permanent hanging is on exhibition in the committee room of the minority conference, of which Senator Gallinger is chairman. Senator John Langdon was the first president pro tempore of the U. S. senate and held the office during first and second congresses. Last March Senator Gallinger introduced a resolution in the senate asking that it authorize an oil portrait of Langdon to be hung in the capitol, at a cost not to exceed $1,000. The resolution passed without objection and Mr. Gallinger was selected to arrange the details.

In presenting the details Mr. Gallinger called attention to the great work done by Langdon. Had it not been for Langdon's liberality it is doubtful if Burdette's advance could have been checked by Stark's men and the American army stores saved in the dark days of the Revolution.

Patrick O'Brien, a steward on the U. S. naval auxiliary ship Arethusa, was stabbed to death on board that vessel on Monday by Andrew Williams, a member of the crew. The Arethusa is on the way to Boston from Port Arthur with a cargo of oil.

It was reported that there had been a mutiny on the Arethusa, but this was denied by naval authorities. They said had blood had existed between Williams and O'Brien for some time.

Want New Navy Yard Slip at New York

Representative James P. Mahoney headed a delegation of congressmen and business men who called on Sec. of the Navy Daniels Monday and urged that an additional slip for the construction of capital ships be provided at the Brooklyn navy yard. The installation of a second slip there would cost about $600,000. Secretary Daniels referred the request to Rear Admiral Harris, chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks.

Will Arrive at the Yard Soon

Business in Washington.
Chief Boutswain W. L. Hill, commanding the U. S. S. Southery, is in Washington on business with the department.

Setting Up Machinery.
Several boring machines, planers, drills, etc., machinery from the Pensacola yard, is being set up for use in building 80, the industrial machine shop. The machines are practically new.

The Rubber Game.
The third rubber game between the bowling teams of the general store and the Industrial Department is scheduled for the alley on Wednesday, Dec. 13. Both teams have each one game to their credit and the third promises to be a hot contest. The Industrial men are trotting out some cash on the game and say it is as good as won.

I WONDER

Why the Boston & Maine doesn't practice its own motto, "Safety First," and do something with the local depot?

Why the "run slow" and "safety first" signs were not displayed on the highway of Daniel street today?

Why a steam shovel cannot be of good service there in scooping up the mud?

What became of Captain Chandler's campaign in Ward 1 for the city council?

What's on at the paper mill?

If the paving for Middle and Daniel street has been ordered?

If there will be any contest on for the chief engineer's position in the Newcastle fire department?

NOTED SUFFRAGE SPEAKER TALKS TO WOMAN'S CLUB

Dr. Jones Claims There Will Be No True Democracy Until Women Vote.

Mrs. Mary I. Wood talked informally at the opening of the suffrage meeting at the Woman's Club Tuesday evening on the need of the woman's vote in New Hampshire, mentioning specific things which the vote would accomplish, touching on certain bills that must pass the legislature with the vote of women.

Dr. Unger then explained the million dollar fund, the plan for raising it, the use to which it will be put and New Hampshire's own apportionment, until the speaker came.

Dr. Effie McCollum Jones then arrived, a little breathless, but talked enthusiastically. She has a remarkable personality and possesses a keen sense of humor and a quick wit.

An opportunity for a suffragist to address a body of men is a thing not to be regarded lightly," said Dr. Effie Jones on her return to the Woman's Club, where she was to address a group of women, "and so I seek your pardon for being tardy."

She first called for a show of hands as to who were suffragists in the audience, for in so far as the speech was an impromptu one she wished to lay emphasis where it was most needed.

She was very optimistic in her analysis of the New Hampshire outlook. "The question of ultimate victory is no longer debatable. Even those who don't believe in it admit its approach."

She called attention to the new phase of the question. No longer a women's rights movement, with emphasis on women's wrongs, or an attack directed against the men as it was once thought to be, nor is the attitude that of criticism for inadequacy of the law is not the chief reason for votes for women. The attitude is one of eagerness to help.

Dr. Jones has been working in South Dakota and in West Virginia and she explained conditions there and told why they had failed to win the vote in those states although they lost by a very narrow margin.

Both are mining states and thus had a large foreign element, also in North Dakota 5,000 Indians vote, and they are by nature antisuffragists, and in West Virginia the negro vote was largely anti. However, the intelligent, thinking male population was swayed.

"Our great hope now is the Federal amendment and it is merely a question of time. Neither will there be any true democracy until women vote. The idea that the woman vote elected Wilson is preposterous, no one knows, as votes were separate only in Illinois. More truth in the statement that they voted largely as the men voted."

"Concerning the Hughes train, Dr. Jones said it did more to elect Mr. Wilson than anything else for the women of California who have been voting for years resented the idea of non-voting easterners coming out and telling them how to vote."

"Equal suffrage has already accomplished these three great facts," she continued. "First, a cleaner finer type of man goes on the ballot, so that he will appeal to the woman vote; second, talking about the vital questions of the twice as many people are thinking and day; third, women receive a new sense of dignity, responsibility and power."

"A glance at the legislation in one of the free states shows a fine record of advancement concerning conditions of women, children, homes, education and industry."

She urged even more intensive work for suffrage in New Hampshire and praised the earnest work of a few who seem to have carried the bulk of the responsibility.

WINS SEVEN YEAR
FIGHT FROM NAVAL OFFICER

Mrs. Walker Given Absolute
Divorce From Lieut. Commander J. W. G. Walker.

Newport, R. I., Dec. 6.—The famous Walker divorce case, which has been decided and undone three times, came up again in the supreme court here yesterday and Judge Rathbone granted Mrs. Walker and absolute divorce on the ground of neglect to provide.

Mrs. Nina Chinn Walker first sued her husband, James Wilson Grimes Walker, then a lieutenant commander in the U. S. navy for divorce in October, 1909. The case at that time was thrown out of court because no residence was established here. The testimony was most sensational and military was charged, with Miss Marie Cuevas, a pretty Boston girl, figuring in the case.

In 1910 it was reentered for trial and Justice Darius Baker decided for a separation with an allowance for Mrs. Walker of $250 a month. It was then taken to the supreme court for another hearing and the former verdict set aside. It came before the body again on an exception and after two years was sent back to the superior court with recommendations for a divorce. At the trial yesterday all testimony was by depositions and the case was heard during the noon recess to avoid publicity.

Councilman James A. Borthwick received the Republican nomination for mayor of Portsmouth at the caucus held on Monday in the probate court room and at 8:00 o'clock, after the announcement that Mr. Borthwick had defeated John G. Tobey for the nomination Mr. Tobey moved that the caucus make the nomination of Mr. Borthwick unanimous, urging that those who had supported his candidacy in the caucus to do all possible to elect the party's choice at the election which occurs next Monday.

That Mr. Borthwick is ably fitted for the position of chief executive of the city is shown in his public life for he has been actively interested in the administration of municipal affairs for a long number of years, serving in the city council for the past four years, three of them as a member of the finance committee, and has also served in the council in previous years under the old form of the city government.

After the announcement of Mr. Borthwick's nomination on a motion by William A. Hodgdon, Judge Guphill chairman of the caucus appointed a committee of five, one from each ward, to wait upon Mr. Borthwick and inform him of the result of the primary. The committee appointed was Henry P. Payne, ward 1; Alfred F. Howdell, ward 2; Thomas A. Ward, ward 3; Howe Call, ward 4; and Dr. E. B. Eastman, ward 5.

In the other candidates the names of men endorsed by the Republican City Committee were nominated without opposition. For the Board of Public Works Theodore W. Law was named the candidate for the three year term, and Councilman Clarence Smart of ward 4 was nominated to fill the two-year term made necessary by the vacancy caused by the death of the late John Newick.

Eben H. Blaisdell was re-nominated for the Board of Assessors. For Councilman-at-Large E. Curtis Matthews was re-nominated and for the other three positions the party named Charles A. Allen, James W. Schurman, and Richard S. Weston as their candidates.

In the several wards some contests were waged for the council nominations. In ward 1, Valentine A. Hett was re-nominated as was also Councilman Edward L. Paterson of ward 2. In ward 2 the voters named Daniel Lytle Stewart S. Humphreys was named as the candidate for ward 4, the place made vacant by Clarence Smart, now

In the present city government the Republicans have three councilmen-at-large and four ward councilmen. The Democrats have one councilman-at-large in Councilman Raynes, candidate for re-election, and Councilman John J. Sullivan of ward three, also candidate for reelection.

KING GEORGE APPROVES NEW CABINET PLAN

PREMIER ASQUITH ANNOUNCES IN COMMONS ROYAL RATIFICATION OF RECONSTRUCTION POLICY.

London, Dec. 4.—England is preparing a "reconstruction."

Premier Asquith made formal announcement in the House of Commons today that King George had rendered his assent to the "reconstruction of the government," which statement yesterday had been made in a confidential manner. The statement was made clear by the premier. He suggested that all questions from members regarding the cabinet personnel be deferred and concluded with the request that when the House adjourned today, it not meet again until Thursday.

The announcement in Commons followed a lengthy conference which Asquith had with the King.

Current reports were that the "reconstruction" meant a radical change in the entire cabinet rather than the mere formation of an authoritative war council. This "small, compact body" for handling of the war was the suggestion first advanced by those known to be in sympathy with David Lloyd George, who apparently precipitated the cabinet crisis.

The intense popular interest in the cabinet situation was evidenced when Parliament met today. Government officials from the war office and all the Parliament buildings packed the floor and the galleries. The only members of the cabinet however, who were present when the session was called to order were Austen Chamberlain, secretary for India and Lord Robert Cecil, minister for blockade.

TONY WIL IAMS SAYS SUNDAY'S SERMON IS LIE

DENIES THAT MIKE KELLY DIED A DRUNKARD AND A PAUPER AS CLAIMED BY BILLY.

Boston, Dec. 4.—Tony Williams, for many years a member of the theatrical profession and who in past days possessed the acquaintance of many ball players, including "Billy" Sunday, today took exception to the reported utterances of Billy in his sermon last night, in which Billy is quoted as saying that the late Mike Kelly, well known ball player of a generation ago, had died a drunkard's death in Pennsylvania and had been buried practically as a pauper.

"That is a contemptible lie," said Williams. "Mr. Kelly did not die a drunkard's death. He passed away at the Emergency Hospital in Boston from an attack of pneumonia. The remains were taken in charge by Boston Lodge of Elks, Past Exalted Ruler Ray of Washington delivered the eulogy, and Fr. Hickey of St. James Church, the sermon. He was given a Christian burial, and lies in Elks' Rest in Mt. Hope cemetery."

"Poor Mike was one of God's noblest men, whose hand was ever in his pocket to help a needy friend. And you can rest assured, he has left thousands of friends, who will refute the contemptible assertion of Mr. Sunday, to malign the memory of poor Kelly."

"I also knew all the members of the Chicago baseball club personally, and Mr. Sunday's article in the morning papers is a tissue of misstatements from start to finish."

HIGH PRICES WILL NOT WORRY HIM

Shoe Cobbler at York Harbor Puts One Over on Leather Trust.

Charles Young of York Harbor has successfully solved the high cost of shoes, as the result of the increase in leather, or rather, he has found a substitute for the leather taps, which are now costing quite a lot more than ever before. Mr. Young is never satisfied unless he is putting one over on some of the big fellows who have the monopoly habit. For instance, the big concerns who make the penny in the slot machines created quite a monopoly and in order to get one of those machines a person had to do all sorts of things. But Mr. Young didn't do any worrying. In his spare time he made a machine that had any of the regular ones beaten to a whisper. When the high cost of leather began to trouble the buyers, Young got mad and declared he would get a substitute which would cost a great deal less and do a great deal more work in the wearing line. And he got it too, as he always does. He had a lot of old automobile castings lying around, waiting for the junk man, who would give the most for them, and one day the York Harbor genius decided to tap his shoes with some of the castings. He selected a tire which was pretty well gone yet had good tread surface enough to make a pair of taps, and cutting them out to fit his shoes nailed them on. This was in July, and the following winter the automobile tire taps were still doing business and hadn't begun to show any great amount of wear. There is no doubt of the practicability of tapping shoes from the castings of old tires. As everyone knows these tires will wear like iron during their life, and when they have served their usefulness as a tire, there is always considerable surface left, unless you happen to be fortunate in securing a tire that wears even all the way round. This discovery of Mr. Young's probably won't

HOW THE DESIGN ON THE NEW DIMES SYMBOLIZES THE POWER OF THE U. S.

Many a person has turned to his neighbor and asked:

"What is that devil-like with the tomahawk in it on the back of the new dimes?"

"That's a face," has been the answer.

"Oh, yes," pretending to understand. It was like looking up the word "face" in a cheap dictionary and having the definition given as "currency," and then looking up "currency" and finding that "currency" meant "coin."

"Faces" is the Latin word for "bundles," and according to an ancient legend the fuses found its origin in the story of the old Etrurian King, who was about to die. He had several sons. He called them to his bedside. They came. He then ordered a servant to bring a bundle of sticks. The servant brought them.

The old King then ordered the eldest son to take the bundle of sticks, to break them over his knee. The eldest son tried, and failed. And each of the other sons tried, and failed.

The old King then ordered the eldest son to break the sticks one at a time. This the son easily did. The old King then pointed out that while the sticks were together, they couldn't be broken, but when separated they were easily broken.

He then pointed a moral. The moral was that if the sons were bound together in the spirit of brotherhood, they would be stronger than if separated.

Then the Romans are supposed to have borrowed the idea from the old Etrurian King, for in the days of the Roman empire a fasces was a bundle of rods usually made of birch, but sometimes of elm, fastened with a strap, with an axe projecting from the middle of them. The fasces represented the power of united Rome, bound together about the battleaxe.

The fasces were carried before the chief magistrates of ancient Rome, so a symbol of the magistrates' power over life and limb. They were borne by the lictors, or attendants, in the time of the Roman Republic, before consuls.

The number of rods varied, a consul having 12 and a praetor six. Valerius Publicola introduced a law that required lictors to lower the fasces at the assemblies of the people as an acknowledgment of their supreme power.

So the fasces symbolize the United States of America. Separately a single state would be helpless against an enemy; but bound together as the United States they are invincible. Hence our motto, "In union there is strength." On the dime a little battleaxe may be seen projecting from the top of the fasces.

There is a fasces in Congress at Washington today. It is always in place, when the House is in session, at the right of the Speaker's desk. If a member of Congress will not obey the Speaker, the Sergeant-at-Arms takes the fasces and holds it up before the member. If the member continues to be unruly, he is considered as having defied, in the fasces, the authority of the people of the United States of America and is forthwith dealt with accordingly.

PEACE TALK RULING THEME AT CONSISTORY.

Rome, Dec. 4.—Discussion of means by which the Great War may be brought to an end was the all-absorbing topic of discussion here today among the Cardinals gathered for the consistory. The Pope, Benedict XV, is expected to deliver a notable allocution dealing with this subject in which he will review his efforts toward peace and his attempts to alleviate the horrors of the struggle.

The only foreign Cardinal to attend this consistory is Amleto, Archbishop of Paris. Cardinal Mercier, Primate of Belgium, is not present because he would not ask the permission of the German military authorities to make the journey, and because he did not wish to stir up another outbreak of anti-German enthusiasm as marked his visit here last January.

POLICE BELIEVE NASHUA WOMAN WAS MURDERED

Attorney General Tuttle Investigating Death of Mrs. Ellen Early.

Nashua, N. H., Dec. 6.—The wounds in the throat of Mrs. Ellen Early, who was found dead in her home 25 Washington street yesterday forenoon leave little doubt in the minds of the authorities that she was murdered and not a suicide. Her throat was apparently cut by two or three slashing blows, several inches long, extending from the left ear nearly across to the right.

The razor, with which these cuts were apparently inflicted, was found close by her right side and not in a position to indicate that it had dropped from the hand of the victim after a self-inflicted injury.

Bernard Early, to whom she was married 22 years ago and was arrested by Inspector James Mulvanity in a saloon near the scene, about noon. He was under the influence of liquor and the police report he says he has no knowledge of the crime.

The first intimation that the authorities had of the tragedy was about 10:30 o'clock when a male voice told Medical Referee Benjamin G. Moran over the telephone that Mrs. Early had been found dead with her throat cut. The man did not tell Dr. Moran who he was. Dr. Moran immediately notified City Marshal Irving P. Goodwin and City Solicitor John R. Spring.

Neighbors say the couple quarreled all day Sunday and the man who occupies the tenement upstairs says he heard them quarreling before eight o'clock yesterday morning. From the condition of the body it is apparent that the woman might have been dead two or three hours.

Early had not been working for some weeks. He formerly was employed at the Boston and Maine freight house and his last job was for the Gunned and Coaled Paper Company.

Both he and his wife have police court records, having been convicted of liquor selling and minor offenses.

Mrs. Early was born in Manchester, Ireland, 15 years ago, a daughter of Joseph McCarthy and had lived in this country 15 years. She leaves two daughters by a former husband, John Burnham, Mrs. Annie McCutcheon of Cottage street and Mrs. Mary Reynolds of Kendrick street, both estimable young women.

The examination shows that Mrs. Early's jugular vein was severed in two places.

Attorney General James P. Tuttle of Manchester arrived here last night and took charge of the investigation.

CANADA O'DERS SHIPS SHOW ONLY NEEDED LIGHTS

CITY OF HALIFAX ALSO IN DARKNESS IN FEAR OF ATTACKS FROM THE SEA.

Halifax, N. S., Dec. 4.—The Dominion naval department has ordered all vessels in Canadian waters to carry only such lights as are absolutely indispensable to safe navigation. It was announced today. The regulations apply to shipping on the Atlantic coast and up the St. Lawrence as far as Quebec. Unofficially, it was said the precautions were due to the reported possibility of German submarine operations on the Atlantic coast. No vessel, according to the orders, may carry anchor, bow or steaming lights, nor lights aloft, on deck or below, except those required for the prevention of collisions, or for authorized signalling purposes.

The order, which again placed this city in darkness a few days ago, stated that "a real emergency does exist." Previous restrictions on lighting here have been reimposed, with some extensions. The Tramway Company was requested to put another coat of paint on street lights, the previous application having partly worn off.

INCENDIARY ATTEMPT TO DESTROY BLOCK

ONE ARREST FOLLOWS EARLY BLAZE IN MANCHESTER THREE-STORY BUILDING.

Manchester, Dec. 4.—An ingenious attempt to burn down the big three-story wooden tenement building at the corner of West Hancock and Second streets early this morning was foiled only by the opportune appearance of Alfred Morin, a tenant in the block, who arrived home at the crucial moment and discovered smoke pouring up from the partition. Morin rushed to Box 542 and sent in an alarm at just 1:39 o'clock.

This action on his part and rapid work by members of the fire department probably saved the buildings and also the lives of many of the occupants. Fire officials stated this morning that had the blaze gained progress through the partition disastrous results might have followed. There are several tenements in the block, and at the hour when the flames were discovered all of the occupants were in a sound sleep.

Deputy Chief Charles French stumbled upon the evidence which resulted in the arrest of a brother of Nicholas Palangas, owner of the grocery store and restaurant, Mr. Palangas, according to his brother, when to Bellows Falls, Vt., on Friday to get married. He had not returned today.

Flashing his light into the dark recesses under the stairway, Deputy French noticed a small hole in the partition, somewhat blackened by smoke. He poked the light into the small aperture and found a small roll of paper resting across one of the braces. It was charred at both ends and had apparently been lighted and placed in that special place. Chief Lane, Deputy Merrill and two police officers were summoned and the investigation continued. It was found that the paper was soaked with kerosene and that evident by a generous supply of the fluid had been poured into the opening.

Up until this time fire officials had thought the fire of ordinary accidental origin, probably starting from a chimney. This sudden find on the part of the deputy chief changed the complexion of the situation. A more detailed investigation of the dark pockets under the stairway was made, but if any paper or kerosene-soaked cloth had been tossed into the opening it was wiped out by the fire.

There was no doubt in the minds of both police and fire officials that the blaze had been set. The owner of the store, who has access to both the establishment and restaurant, was out of town, so his brother told the men. He had been gone since Friday. Palangas' brother was highly nervous, and it was decided to arrest him on suspicion. He was taken to the police station last night.

But for a blunder on the part of the person who attempted to raze the building by fire the job might have been accomplished. In rolling the paper he made it so tight that the flames soon died out without burning the whole torch. Chief Lane touched a match to the roll as soon as it was discovered and the fumes of kerosene flamed up. The blaze was quenched and the article kept for evidence.

Alfred Morin, who is employed in a West Side laundry, probably saved the building from destruction. He had returned from his night work and was preparing to eat when he smelled smoke and heard the crackling of flames. Without waiting to make a thorough investigation, he rushed to the fire alarm box on the corner.

Shortly after their arrival fire chiefs broke in the door leading to the store. Flames were apparently pouring from the partition from the stairway. Deputy Chief Merrill attacked the fire from the inside, while Deputy French went up into the hallway to check the flames from ascending to the roof.

The building is situated at the corner of Hancock and Second streets and is occupied by a number of families. On the ground floor are two stores, one a grocery establishment at the very corner, and the other a restaurant. Both are conducted by Nicholas Palangas, a Greek resident of Manchester.

Fire officials are of the opinion that the person who set the blaze imagined the department would be busy with Box 5 and wouldn't have an opportunity to get across the river and attend to Box 425. It was only an hour before the West Hancock and Second-street box was pulled when Box 5 sounded.

Upon the return of Mr. Palangas from Bellows Falls, Vt., some action will probably be taken by the officials.

WITH THE SPORTS

New York, Dec. 2.—When the National and American leagues hold their annual meetings here and in Chicago on December 12, the baseball public, and particularly that part of it which represents the minor leagues, will have an eye on each meeting and an ear close to the ground for first-hand reports of the attitude of the big fellows toward suggestions which will be offered by the National Association.

For the first time in its history the National Association of Professional Baseball Clubs, which includes all the recognized minor leagues, stood upon its underpinning this year and became bold enough to make a number of recommendations for the betterment of baseball in its own immediate circle. The minors want it understood that they are not making demands. They have merely adopted resolutions to be placed before the big leagues at their winter sessions, and they are living in the hope that favorable results will follow.

The biggest thing asked for by the National Association as a whole is the sanction of a new baseball Court of Appeals by the majors. Minor league players do not want to erase the present National Commission, but they believe that they should have some voice in controversies between themselves and the majors.

For this reason they will ask that a new Board of Appeals be formed, consisting of two major league representatives, two minor league members and a neutral member, the body as a whole to decide all cases in dispute between minor and major league club owners.

Men high up in the national game have said many times that the minor leagues could gain concessions from the majors if they would but ask for them. And the plan for minor league representation on a new Board of Appeals seems likely to be given support by the majors, since it does away with the much-talked-of idea of disrupting the time-honored National Commission.

Another appeal to be placed before the major leagues at their December meetings has to do with the lifting of the draft from the three Class AA leagues. This recommendation, backed by the National Association as a whole, will extend the privileges of the Pacific Coast League, the American Association and the International League. If it is sanctioned by the two big leagues these three big minors will enjoy freedom that they have been looking forward to for years.

What Class AA club owners want is the right to build up strong teams and retain their players as long as they see fit. They will not ask equal drafting privileges with the majors, and they do not expect to be given a rating on the same level. They hope, by having the major league draft lifted from them, to create a better market for their stars, and to enjoy the right of selling players to whom they please. Instead of being forced to sell their best talent each fall or lose it in the draft at a much smaller price than they could get otherwise.

The sentiment of the minor leagues as a whole in supporting their three big brothers in this move has been prompted by the belief that in lifting the draft a better market will be created for ball players of all classes, and this with no great hardship on the majors.

Two or three years ago Class A and B leagues would have flatly refused to support such a move, but the last of boosting Old King Swat to his former high plane of prosperity is a big one, and the minors have come to the conclusion that they can afford to grant concessions to each other in order to gain their ends.

CAPTISM TO MAKE A NEW DEMOCRAT.

Havana, Mo., Dec. 4.—The town pump is being greased for action. Lines are being put up to keep back the crowd. And the horse trough is being secured.

(For in Havana they are preparing to make a Democrat, Judge Lemuel McDonald, life-long Republican, will be baptized into the faith. Frank Dickerson will officiate.)

Back in the '60s Dickerson and McDonald fought side by side. Since then they have been warm friends. Recently, when the Presidential race began to stir, the two met for heated arguments.

"I'd like to make a Democrat of you," said Dickerson.

"You can if Wilson is elected," returned McDonald. "You can baptize me publicly and I'll be a Wilson booster of the first order for the next four years."

McDonald says he will take his baptism in the icy waters with the valor of a soldier.

600 START OHIO CORNBOYS' TOUR EAST.

Columbus, Ohio, Dec. 4.—More than 600 Ohio boys, girls, relatives and friends today started on the Buckeye Cornboys' annual tour to New York, Washington and other eastern points. The pilgrimage is under the auspices of the State Agricultural Board. Free trips were given to more than 100 girls who won domestic science contests, and 210 boys who are winners of corn-growing contests. State officials accompanied the young folk. The excursion comprises six sections, which will be assembled at Pittsburgh, where an indoor circus will be enjoyed. Three days will be spent in Washington and one day in New York.

SUMMER COLONY SEEMS LIKELY AT DOVER POINT

SYNDICATE OF REAL ESTATE MEN LOOKING OVER LAND AT DOVER POINT, LAST SATURDAY.

A syndicate of Boston real estate men paid a visit to Dover Point on Saturday, making a tour of inspection, looking over the real estate bordering the town of Dover. Accompanied by Fred H. Roberts and Representative-elect Fred L. Morang, both of Dover. The party also motored to Ebbot in Mr. Morang's automobile where they looked over several valuable pieces of real estate bordering on the Cocheco river.

It is said that the syndicate are contemplating purchasing some land on the water front for some purpose but it was impossible to learn their plans. It has been rumored for some time past that a Boston syndicate were contemplating purchasing land along the water front at Dover Point and establishing summer homes. There are many places along the water front at Dover Point that would make ideal spots for this purpose. Some of the places along these are finely situated not only for bathing purposes but excellent views can be had of the surrounding country. If Boston people should purchase land at Dover Point and establish a summer colony there it would mean much to both Dover and this city.

IT TOOK THREE ENGINES TO GET TRAIN TO BOSTON

It took three locomotives to get passenger train No. 500 from Wolfeboro to Boston today. The train was 45 minutes behind the schedule on arriving in this city.

POLICE COURT

James P. Albert, a former navy man was before the court today charged with obtaining money under false pretenses and pleaded not guilty. Albert has had more or less trouble with his check account and has before talked it over with the police. Sam Cohen, proprietor of Everybody's State, appeared against him today and claimed that Albert handed him a phony check in payment for some goods amounting to $7. He testified that the check was made out for $14 and that he, Cohen, gave Albert $7 in change. The bank later would not honor the check, which was on a Nebraska bank. The case was continued until Dec. 18 and bail ordered in the sum of $400.

Arthur Pegging was pegging away in one of the lunch carts on Monday night when the cops pegged in and Arthur pegged out. He was declaring himself for anything that would come his way such as puttermen, fighters, wrestlers, in fact a little scrap would be pastime for him and the bigger the opponent the better for the soldier boy. However, the two big cops told Arthur that he had put the "m" in Pegging all right and that he would have to do his training for the prize ring somewhere besides the portable dining room.

Somebody told the police that Arthur had a knife which he declared he was going to put into action, but Arthur said he had no dirk and somebody's eyesight was bad. When the case was concluded Pegging began to peg for $10.13 to obtain his liberty.

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS

'Manhattan Madness'

The Triangle Magazine makes the statement that no other Tri-able play has received the praise from the New York Press as has this picture.

"Manhattan Madness" is a play of the East and the West. It is all kinds of a picture—a society picture, a mystery picture, an adventure picture, a comedy picture. Above all it is a Fairbank's picture, and he has never bubbled and beamed his way through a picture as he does through this one.
